HOSE COMPANY FUNDS ILLEGAL IN STATE RULING

Examiner Declares Appropriations Can't Legally Be Made

INDEPENDENT AND DELUGE ARE HIT

$150 to Each Group Must Be Cancelled As Result of Edict

Appropriations made by city council of $150 each to two Salem volunteer fire companies were declared illegal in a ruling submitted to council members Tuesday night by State Examiner Ralph A. Riegler.

The ruling, which definitely indicated that council has no authority to grant money for the volunteer companies, was given Riegler by the office of State Auditor Joseph Tracy through the Ohio Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices.

Both in Need of Funds

The action of the state, declaring such appropriations illegal, is expected to strike a death blow at the two volunteer organizations, both of which at the present time are declared by councilmen in dire need of funds and unable to continue in operation without assistance from the municipality.

Council has made annual appropriations for the Deluge Hose company here for years, apportioning amounts to it as high as $600 annually. The appropriation was gradually decreased to $300, later to $250 and this year was cut to $150 for each volunteer unit.

Riegler, finding records of the appropriations, wrote the state office for an opinion, with the following ruling being returned:

"We find no authority of law for a city to pay a stipulated sum to a volunteer fire company annually.

"Of course, the city may maintain a volunteer fire company but compensation shall be fixed by council and such compensation shall be paid to the individual volunteer firemen who respond to an alarm."

No Fixed Compensation

L. R. Cobb, chairman of council's appropriations and finance committee, explained that he had conferred with Examiner Riegler on the matter and said that, unless volunteer fire-fighters were provided sleeping quarters by the city, and be ready to respond to an alarm at any time, no fixed annual compensation may legally be granted.

Coincidental with the receipt of the ruling, read to council by Clerk Thirl A. Eckstein, was the appearance, at last night's meeting, of representatives of each of the two hose companies. The volunteers appeared at the meeting to inquire of council why money appropriated for the two units this year had not yet been received and whether there is any possibility that the money will be available.

DRIVE GOAL IS $12,900 IN TWO DAYS

Teams Will Receive Instructions At Meeting Tonight

With the goal set at $12,900, the reduced figure itself emphasizing the campaign of economy among participating institutions, Salem's Community Chest workers, approximately 100 of them, will receive final instructions at a meeting at 6:30 tonight in the Memorial building prior to the solicitation of funds Thursday and Friday.

General Chairman Earl S. Kerr will preside at this evening's meeting. Instructions will be given to the team captains and workers by Atty L. P. Metzger, campaign manager.

Workers Confident

In years past, no Community Chest campaign has failed and the welfare workers are confident that the present appeal, despite conditions, also will not fail.

The reports of the first day's activities will be made at a meeting at 6:30 p. m. Thursday at the Elks club, the place for the meeting being transferred from the Memorial building because of the fact that the latter building had been previously leased to other activities. Friday night's meeting also will be held at the Elks club.

A program of music by high school students will add interest to this evening's meeting. It will include piano selections by Charles Fred, vocal solos by Miss Rachel Cope and numbers by the brass quartet, including Marion McArthur, Claire King, William Holloway and Dale Leipper.

Laud Red Cross

Campaign leaders today brought to attention the work of one of the participating units, the Red Cross.

"What is of vital importance to a family during such a depression as we have been going through?" "Food, clothing and heat."

"Salem found itself without funds to administer the needed relief in October, 1931. The township trustees were ordered to give no relief in Salem from that time on. The city had never made an appropriation for relief, as is called for by law. Relief had always been taken care of by Red Cross and the township trustees. Would it not have been a reflection on the efficiency of the Red Cross to allow families to suffer for the necessities of life?"

"By giving this much needed relief from October, 1931, to March 1, 1932, Red Cross incurred a debt of $1,700. This debt would have been much greater had not Service Director Clyde Reich given the city work to men with families needing coal. The debt has been reduced to between seven and eight hundred dollars by various benefits."

Has Varied Duties

"In normal times Red Cross would care for about 100 families per month with their nursing service, their unemployment work, service to ex-service men, relief work, investigations for relief organizations all over the country, travelers aid work for both citizens and immigrants handling the money for families whose breadwinner is in a penal institution, helping with court cases, getting those in need of institutional care in the proper institution and making case records of every family receiving advice or relief of any kind. From January 1, 1933, 639 different families had assistance."

"In March, 1932, the Salem Relief Commission was formed with Service Director John Kerr as chairman and composed of a councilman from each ward and a part of the Red Cross case committee. At the present time we are making the family history face sheets for both the Salem Relief commission and the City Hospital Out Patients Dispensary, which was established in January, 1933. This necessitates numerous investigations. In normal times a nurse is employed, a social worker,

R. S. McCulloch Co. Is Preparing For Annual May Sale

In another section of this issue, the R. S. McCulloch Co. announces its annual May sale, which is being made a bigger store event this year than for many years.

Extra preparations are being made for this sale, which starts Thursday, and the appeal that is being made to the public by R. S. McCulloch is that now is the time to buy.

The sale was arranged specially to give shoppers an opportunity to buy on the eve of a rising market. "Prices are advancing," he said today, "and new orders are being accepted by manufacturers only on the basis of a higher market. This means that future stocks of dry goods will command higher prices, and so we arranged this sale on the basis of present prices as an inducement to all to buy now."

Attractive prices have been placed on the complete line carried by this store for the May sale.

HITLER ENDORSES ROOSEVELT'S PLEA FOR WORLD-WIDE PEACE

President Roosevelt Sends Works Program to Congress; Immediate Action is Asked

Requests Full Executive Authority to Inaugurate $3,300,000,000 Construction Project

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, May 17.—President Roosevelt sent his all-inclusive public works industrial supervision program today to a congress where his huge Democratic majorities were planning expeditious action.

Requesting full executive authority to inaugurate a $3,300,000,000 public construction program, he asked the legislators to decide before early next week on new taxes to underwrite this project.

If a decision is not reached by that time, he will submit his own recommendations for taxes.

Mr. Roosevelt also asked authority to reduce or eliminate the new taxes, should prohibition repeal become effective or increasing revenues make them unnecessary.

Calling attention to the repeal amendment before the states, Roosevelt said in event it is adopted:

"The pre-prohibition revenue laws would then automatically go into effect and yield enough wholly to eliminate these temporary reemployment taxes."

Recommending government co-operation with industry he said the purpose is to "obtain wide reemployment, to shorten the working week to pay a decent wage for the shorter week and to prevent unfair competition and disastrous overproduction."

SOUND CALL FOR FORESTRY ARMY

Relief Unit Orders Recruits To Report At Canton Sunday

LISBON, May 17.—Columbiana county's group of 225 young men selected for enlistment in the federal reforestation army have been notified by Secretary Edward Lowry of the county relief commission to report at 10 a. m. next Sunday at the Armory, Sixth street, S. W. Canton, for final physical examination.

Those finally selected following this examination probably will leave Canton Sunday night for Camp Knox, Ky., for intensive training before location assignment.

Salem's Recruits

Those selected from Salem are: James McGowan, Daniel Holloway, Lewis L. Benedict, Lawrence Breault, Kenneth Johnson, Albert Fisher, Jr., Vernon Long, John M. Robert, Harold Haughton, Clat McCaffick, Ernest Trotter, Mearl B. Lakin.

Paul Bell, Arthur Swenningsson, John Barnes, Mike Yakubek, William McCartney, Alden West, Clifford West, Joseph Bush, Julius Julian, Marion Zeppernick, William Bowling, Harold Libert, Herbert Jacobson, Harry Frederick Elsner.

Alternates: Earl P. Ritchie, Edgar Huddleston.

Instructions received by Lowry today included an order for an additional list of recruits to report at Canton, this being five percent of the allotment for this county. As a result 13 additional names have been added to the original list. The additional men reporting will replace those who may not pass the physical examination.

Official notice will be forwarded immediately to those who are to report at Canton.

When the men go to the recruiting station, each should take a lunch with him, it has been explained by the County Relief commission, as he may be at the recruiting station all day. He should also be prepared to go directly from the recruiting station to the "conditioning camp," without returning to his home, if he is finally accepted.

Should Travel Light

This means that he should take with him whatever things he needs for the six months on the job. The recruit should "travel light." He may take one suitcase if he wishes. Clothing, blankets and camp equipment will be provided for him at the camp. He should take toilet articles; he may want to bring one good suit of clothes for excursions away from the camp; and he should take any other special pieces of equipment such as a flash light, that he may want to take along.

At the recruiting station, the man is given a preliminary physical examination. The purpose of the examination is to see whether there are any physical conditions which would make it impossible or undesirable for him to attempt hard physical labor in the forests. For example, a man with a bad heart condition, or a man with a communicable disease, including venereal disease, cannot be accepted for this work.

The standards set for the preliminary and final physical examinations are not as exacting as requirements for enlistment in the United States army. They are intended only to insure that the man will be able to perform ordinary manual labor and that he is free from disease.

The County List

Other recruits from Columbiana county who will report at Canton are: East Liverpool City: George Bush, Leonard Klemann, Ralph Miller, James Thorne, George Eddy, Ray Kidder, Floyd Derenburger, Francis J. Smith, Raymond Corrish, Harry Boso, Arthur Merriman, Richard Lamborn.

Jack Wain, Harry Whittenberger, Howard Neil, Jr., Frank Pierce, Edgar Talbot, Ray Bailey, Clark Standley, Earl Charles Miller, Paul Hayes, Devon Johannings, Joseph

Promises Cooperation In Speech Today Before Reichstag

"WILL GO AS FAR AS OTHER NATIONS"

Agrees Disarmament Solution Must Lead Economic Improvement

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, May 17.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in an impassioned speech before the Reichstag, today gratefully endorsed President Roosevelt's plan for relieving the international crisis and promised cooperation with Mr. Roosevelt's efforts.

The chancellor agreed that without solution of the disarmament problem, lasting economic reconstruction is unthinkable.

In behalf of the entire nation, and especially the young Nazi movement, he pledged that Germany would go as far as any nation in disarming, even to the extent of scrapping her whole military equipment provided other powers did the same.

Declares for Peace

He particularly offered to refrain from any claims for instruments of aggression so long as other nations scrapped theirs.

"There is but one great task before world, namely to secure the peace of the world," the chancellor exclaimed amid the plaudits of his listeners.

He denied that Germany contemplated an invasion of France or Poland, emphasizing that his nation is devoid of all instruments of aggression.

Germany, the chancellor said, is ready to join any non-aggression pact in the realization that the high-minded proposal of the American president to inject the mighty United States as the guarantor of peace in Europe would mean great tranquillization for all who desire peace."

Will Follow Treaties

"What more concrete security can France want from Germany?" His government, he pledged, would proceed on no other path except that prescribed in the international treaties, but he asserted Germany would under no circumstances sign any paper which continued her disqualification.

Should such effort nevertheless be made, he warned that Germany would withdraw from international conferences and from the League of Nations.

No new European war could mend matters, the chancellor declared, but, on the contrary, even if a re-

BEVERLY HILLS, CAL., May 17.—Well, lots of war news in the papers today. I knew it was coming when I saw that we had cut down on our army and navy.

If you want to know when a war is coming, just watch the United States and see when they start cutting down on their defense. It's the surest barometer in the world.

The Democrats have one great failing (that I was in hopes they had lived down), and that is they just want to fix the affairs of the world.

Now it's big hearted, and it's mighty generous, but it's just not possible for me (three thousand miles away) to tell you what caliber gun to have in your house. You know your neighbors better than I do.

INTERNATIONAL LEADERSHIP

Most Americans believe that President Roosevelt delivered a true expression of national feeling in his unexpected message to the rulers of the world. They like what he said and they like the way he said it. The Roosevelt has earned the reputation of non-conformists. A message talking about ticklish situations straightforwardly and sent directly to the rulers of the earth is in pleasing harmony with this country's awakened liberalism.

President Roosevelt knows what all realistic thinkers in the United States and Europe know—that forces which threaten to throw the world into greater chaos are at large. A crisis in international relationships is threatened—a crisis compounded of so many currents and cross currents of feeling that it defies definition. In Asia, in South America and in Europe war is current or threatened. And as important as fighting with guns, gas and bombs is that other kind of warfare which some day may supplant battlefield slaughter—paralyzing economic rivalry carried on in the offices of industrialists and bankers.

There is as great a need for a "new deal" in diplomacy as there is in domestic policies. For the last dozen years, the world, apparently exhausted by the climactic stupidity of the World War, has been stumbling steadily toward new dangers. Governments have lost whatever sense of direction they possessed. Their populations, sensing the aimlessness of helpless officials, have turned frantically to actions which led only to more complex troubles. It is no wonder that strong leadership in nations abroad, however unworthy of confidence, has captured the fancy of dissatisfied people in every nation.

Two somewhat vague remedies have been held in prospect. They are the disarmament conference at Geneva and the world economic conference, which will convene in London next month. Unfortunately, neither has commanded the respect its objectives deserved, for the good reason that governments have been too unsettled and distracted to permit the kind of co-operation necessary for the success of international agreements.

It is precisely this situation which President Roosevelt proposes to straighten out with a concise program. Its purpose is to calm international fear by making tangible progress toward assured security by real disarmament. To promote progress toward that purpose, four things are necessary. First, the MacDonald plan calling for consultation in case of war and for immediate steps to reduce military strength should be accepted. This amounts to pledging the United States under a consultative pact.

Second, definite agreement on the time and procedure for accomplishing further disarmament should be reached. This gives new purpose to the world disarmament conference, which has been crumbling slowly under heavy pressures of conflicting viewpoints.

Third, it should be agreed among all nations that while preliminary steps are being taken there will be an arms moratorium within the limits of existing treaties. The fourth step, which is President Roosevelt's contribution to a discussion which has included all the others, calls for an universal non-aggression pact—a moral guarantee by all nations insuring security while the actual business of disarmament is carried forward.

It would be impossible to enumerate, let alone to comprehend, all the ramifications of so momentous a state paper in the capitals of the world. It is sufficient to understand at the outset that President Roosevelt has voiced America's plea for a new order of sanity in a world whose frequent and persistent mistakes, many of them having their origin in the United States, threaten wholesale destruction of human values. His countrymen stand behind him, hopeful that other nations will share the inspiration they have received from this manifestation of leadership which does not threaten destruction of life to achieve its purpose.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Causes of Dizzy Spells Many

One of the favorite pastimes of country children is to whirl around in a swing. The rapid rotary motion of the swing is amusing, because at the end of the performance the "whirler" staggers dizzily from the swing, unable to walk straight or stand erect.

To those of mature years, dizziness is far from amusing and apt to cause grave concern that some serious bodily condition exists. Most attacks of dizziness, particularly in the young, are trivial and usually easily overcome, of course there are some serious conditions in which dizziness is a symptom, but fortunately these are rare.

The causes of vertigo, as dizziness is called, are many and varied. Almost everyone of us can recall times when we have felt on the verge of falling because as we say, "my head went around."

"Meniere's disease" Auto-intoxication, indigestion and constipation are the most common causes of dizziness. Eystein, wax in the ear, sinus infection, congestion of the larynx or some disturbance of the circulation, following a severe fit of coughing, are all causes of dizziness.

"Meniere's disease" is a distressing form of vertigo caused by involvement of that portion of the inner ear known as the "semi-circular canals". It is not a common ailment. In this disease there may be slight dizziness or sudden severe attacks lasting from a few minutes to several hours. Ringing, buzzing, throbbing sounds in the ear are common, and occasionally loud noises like explosions, are experienced. In severe attacks there may be nausea, vomiting or loss of consciousness. Treatment of the ear condition will usually afford relief.

Have a Physical Examination As a rule, vertigo disappears when the sufferer lies down. In cases of elderly persons who suffer some arterial trouble the dizziness may be increased by the recumbent position. Sudden changes of position frequently make the dizziness worse. One who suffers from persistent vertigo should have a thorough physical examination. This should include a careful analysis of the urine.

Sun or heat stroke is often followed by a tendency to dizziness. Severe anemia or the convalescence from some serious illness, affects the normal equilibrium. Unusually quick or unexpected movements of the body, the rapid ascent or descent of an elevator, or the rocking of a ship, result in dizziness. This may be due to some disturbance of eye origin, or of the semi-circular canals of the ear.

Dizziness experienced only while in high places is undoubtedly of nervous origin, and need cause no concern to those affected. If you suffer from persistent vertigo or dizziness, it is wise to consult your doctor. He will reassure you.

NEW YORK, May 17.—James H. Harker would be pleased with the return of the old literary flavor to his 14th street haunt, Luchow's. It's not as yet what it was in the days it inspired the "Down Where the Wurzbacher Flows" song, but a melancoly permeates the dark-timbered gloom. And it is packed to the guard rails.

In a corner Dudley Field Malone dimpled into his usual chubby smile as he lifted a pester tankard. The same corner, incidentally, where Harker heekled bright spots of his time into dawn discussions of insoluble problems. With Victor Herbert beaming benignly over a seidel.

Fannie Hurst seemed the center of exuberant talk at another table, and Theodore Dreiser, flaunting his white crest high, strode through the room in the wake of a vital, distinguished company. One missed, however, the high cheer of old Fritz's "Voll, how iss de epillite this evening?"

Sprinkled about, too, were Nathan Burkan, Karl Kitchen, Joe Moore, Dick Berlin and Ray Lillbridge. A genial aura, yet there's still a strain to recapture the fictitious fellowship that once made Luchow's Janssen's and other foamy citadels the delightfully care-free havens they were.

The Hofbrau, on a Broadway corner in the 30's, was another tavern that specialized in awaiting steins and close barbershop harmony. One of the town's humorous touches was offered by it two days after a declaration of war on Germany. In an excess of patriotism a giant American flag rippled an electric red, white and blue across its entire facade. In a cellar across the way Kid McCoy's Poodle Dog featured that charm found so notoriously among the worthless. It was the haunt of Siskey Arnstein and Arnold Rotenstein.

Another vulgarly vivid spot was a barrel house on Sixth avenue known as Black Ida's, run inconspicuously by an Irishman named Paddy Moriarty. Beer at five cents a scoop included the tastiest bowl of black bean soup with crackers in the world. A rendezvous of nympos du pave, yet rear tables buzzed with

LEGISLATURE HIGHLIGHTS

Thumbnail sketch of activities in the legislature.

The administration probably will succeed in bringing Gov. White's sales and income tax bills before the house. While no definite statement was made members of the house taxation committee indicated they would send the measures to the floor for an open fight.

A new taxation plan made its appearance in the senate yesterday. A bill offered by Senator Sheppard (R) of Summit county would levy a business activities replacement tax of one-half of one per cent on all sales, repeal the intangibles tax law and one cent of the gasoline tax. The measure is intended to raise from $65,000,000 to $75,000,000 annually.

The senate adopted a resolution inviting Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, for of sales taxes, to address the legislature. State Senator Walter N. Taylor of Mississippi addressed the law makers yesterday in support of Gov. White's two-way program.

Another senate resolution asks a congressional investigation of the interstate commerce commission's decision invalidating Ohio's reduced intrastate coal freight rates.

Senator Whittemore (R) of Summit county introduced a bill to transfer from the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station to the Metropolitan park board of Summit county the fund created by the will of Hayward Kendall.

Senator Emmons presented a bill to amend his horse race betting law to meet objections of Gov. White. The amendments would provide for four commissioners instead of three and an increase in the local option requirement from 25 to 35 per cent of the qualified voters. The senate decided to reconsider the dog track betting bill, previously rejected.

Bills passed by the house would extend the terms of county clerks to four years, make additional safety requirements in the mining code and prohibit fraudulent sale of gasoline and oil products.

The house highways committee is considering a bill to provide property tax relief through a system of road assessment refunds. The bill calls for a state fund of $4,000,000 to be distributed among the 88 counties.

What Others Say

THE SHADY SIDE

Ruth Bryan Owen believes Europeans should know that the United States is not inhabited exclusively by the characters of Sinclair Lewis, who, she says, "pictures only the shady side of Main Street."

So, in addition to her diplomatic duties as American minister to Denmark, Mrs. Owen hopes to make the civilization of the United States better known to the people of Scandinavia through our literature, art and music.

That Mrs. Owen will do a good job of keeping Uncle Sam's best foot forward while she is in Denmark seems likely.

However, we at home may be thankful that the brilliance of Sinclair Lewis' pen did expose to light the shady side of Main Street. It doesn't hurt us to have our shortcomings pointed out to us once in awhile, though, like Mrs. Owen, we don't want to be known by these alone.—Columbus Citizen.

The lunar transits holding major influence on the activities of this day give much leeway for the exercise of individual acumen and diligence. A small change, journey or removal seem imminent, but much depends upon the personal grasp of opportunities, with study return for industry, application and practical methods. There should be substantial gain in property or other real possessions, with possible assistance from elderly persons or institutions.

Those whose birthday it is are in the eve of a year of minor change in interests, environment or associates, with the outcome depending largely on individual effort, industry and sound judgment. But it seems favorable for substantial gains, with accumulation of possessions.

A child born on this day may be talented, original, industrious and practical in many ways but fond of change and new interests.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE //

by WARWICK DEEPIING

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE
Wolfe stood hat in hand.
"Mrs. Loosely?"
"Yes, sir."
"I am Dr. Wolfe. Mr. Crabbe sent me."
"Will you step in the parlour, sir?"
"Thank you."
Mrs. Loosely's parlour was Mrs. Loosely's parlour, and that describes it. Chintz, antimacassars, and curtains had nothing to be ashamed of, even though they resided in a place called Eve's Corner. The parlour was the museum of the Loosely family. There appeared to be photos of everything that had ever belonged to the Looselys, faded farm-houses, faded cows, faded children. Wolfe was afraid of knocking things over. There were chifferies crowded with china and knick-knacks. Even the round table in the middle of the room was covered with wool-mats, ornaments, and vases, a black Bible rising like Mount Sinai in the midst of this deluge of trifles.

"Mr. Crabbe suggested that I should come to see you. The fact is, Mrs. Loosely—I am going to put up my plate in Navestock."
"Will you sit down, doctor?"
Wolfe sat down in a horsehair-covered arm-chair. Mrs. Loosely chose the edge of the sofa holding herself very stiff and straight. Here again there was nothing reminiscent of the woman Eve.

"Mr. Crabbe told me that he had mentioned the matter to you."
"He has done so, doctor."
"You see—I want rooms in Navestock, and someone to look after me."

"And I would be glad in many ways to oblige you, sir. I have never taken lodgers into my house, but a professional gentleman, and a friend of Mr. Crabbe's, too—"

"Then you would be willing?"

"There was a difficulty somewhere, and Mrs. Loosely's austere face showed it."

"Well—what is it that troubles you?"

"It's the bell, doctor."

"The bell?"

"I haven't got a bell, sir, and I couldn't have the people fining my brass knocker and making a clatter all over the house. Then—they'd send their boys with messengers, and you know what boys are, doctor, always leaving the gate open, and I can't abide an open gate. It's bred in me—I suppose always thinking of cattle straying."

"Good morning, Mr. Dendy, can you fit me out with a brass plate?" asked Wolfe.

Wolfe smiled one of his most conciliatory smiles. The older a man grows, the more he is astonished by the queer things that tyrannize over men and women.

"We could have a bell fixed, Mrs. Loosely."

"Then at night, sir! It would make me jump out of my sleep in a terror. I have led such a quiet life."

"The bell could ring in my room and quite softly. I would see to that. As for the gate we could put a spring on it to make it shut; and I'd make myself responsible for the door knocker. One thing—though—I smoke."

A queer little ghost of a smile seemed to gather memories about Mrs. Loosely's mouth.

"I don't object to tobacco, sir. Why—Loosely, he was a man for his pipe, though it worried my life the way he threw the spill ends about, and knocked his pipe out on the fender."

Wolfe laughed.

"They discussed terms, and Wolfe, who had some experience of landladies, decided that Mrs. Loosely was eminently just. She would not steal a pin from him, but she would charge for the pin if she were asked to provide it. That was the woman's nature, and such people are very useful to deal with. Wolfe would know to a farthing how he stood."

He asked to see the house, and Mrs. Loosely took him round with the gravity of a verger. The place promised to adapt itself admirably to his needs. There was a good back room with a smaller room opening out of it that he could turn into a surgery. Moreover, a side door opened into a passage leading into the main street, and the lesser sort of patient could come in that way without disturbing Mrs. Loosely.

The house had a yard and a small stable attached to it, and a little coach-house with big green doors. Mrs. Loosely kept one servant and was ready to do all the catering and cooking and to mend and wash John Wolfe's clothes.

The terms she suggested struck Wolfe as very fair. He accepted them, stipulating that he should be allowed to make certain alterations in the room he intended to use as a surgery, and promising to provide a door-bell and a spring for the front gate. He shook hands with Mrs. Loosely, and made his way back to "The Crooked Billet" to warn Mr. Ragz of his change of plans.

Passing along King Street he had a suggestion thrown at him by the window of Mr. Dendy's ironmongery shop. A door plate! That was about the first thing he needed by Navestock! He entered Mr. Dendy's shop, and found the ironmonger behind the counter.

"Good morning, Mr. Dendy, can you fit me out with a brass plate?"

"A brass plate, sir?"

Mr. Dendy was a heavy, sodd-eyed man, and of very low receptivity. He looked puzzled by Wolfe's order, as though the sin of originality lurked behind it. So far as Mr. Dendy's face expressed any glimmer of intelligence, the brass plate might have been needed as a chest-protector or a patch for somebody's trousers.

"What sort of plate, sir?"

"A door-plate."

"Finger-plate, sir?"

"No, a name-plate."

"Oh, I see, sir, a card-plate, sir, for visiting cards."

Wolfe smiled.

"A brass door-plate, Mr. Dendy, with my name on it. 'Mr. Wolfe, Surgeon.'"

Mr. Dendy's eyes grew more fish-like. The significance of the order burrowed its way into his brain.

"Then you are going to settle down among us, doctor?"

"I hope so."

"In partnership with Dr. Threadgold?"

"No, by myself."

Mr. Dendy's flat face looked heavily sceptical.

"Then you'd be wanting a pretty big plate, doctor?"

Wolfe was amused by the unflattering suggestiveness of Mr. Dendy's thoughts.

"About a yard square, Mr. Dendy. I think would do!"

"A yard square, sir?"

"No, no, no bigger than Dr. Threadgold's. Send a man round to have a look at his, and make one the same size. I want plain lettering."

"Praps you'd be so good as to write it down, doctor."

He produced a bill head and a stubby pencil. And Wolfe wrote what was to be—to all intents and purposes—a declaration of war.

350 Attend Inspection of Salem Eastern Star; Unit Complimented

Officers of Salem chapter No. 334, Order of the Eastern Star, were highly complimented for their work, when Miss Esther Rhodes of Massillon, deputy grand matron, conducted the annual inspection Tuesday evening at the Masonic temple, East State st.

Miss Rhodes was presented a gift from the chapter, and Mrs. H. C. Thomson, worthy grand matron, received a gift from her officers.

The chapter room was resplendent with masses of "peach blossoms," thousands of the little pink flowers being used in the beautiful decorations. "Peach trees" were intermingled with palms and ferns at the front of the room. Huge baskets of lilies were used effectively throughout other rooms of the temple.

At the entrance of the dining room was an arch of lattice work intertwined with the "blossoms" and a "tree" on either side of it. The tables at which dinner was served to 200 persons, preceding the work, were enhanced with a decorative motif of pink and white. Bouquets of wild crab apple blossoms formed the center pieces. The chair covers were pink and white.

No—the chapter did not "break" into a peach orchard for the "blossoms" for they were made by the members.

Among the guests for this event, one of the most outstanding of the year, were: Mrs. Maude Gilmer, Warren, past worthy grand matron; Mrs. Harriet Rein, Youngstown, associate grand conductor; Mrs. Carman Craybill, Louisville, and Mrs. Mathilda Moyer, Youngstown, grand representatives of Virginia and Mississippi, respectively, and Harvey Rein, Youngstown, past master of the grand council.

Approximately 350 persons attended the inspection. There were visitors from Massillon, Alliance, Warren, Youngstown, Garrettsville, East Liverpool, and other towns in the district.

GRANGE PARTY

Two hundred persons attended a beautifully appointed benefit party given Thursday evening by Goshen grange at the hall, northwest of the city.

Pink and white tones predominated in the decorations and the guests were seated at tables graced with candles.

Three members of the Salem Dramatic club had part in the program. Readings were given by Misses Floris Balesley and Mary Campbell, and Homer Gray entertained with banjo selections.

Billy Hannay and his sister Joan, gave a tap dance, with Mrs. Esther Odoran playing the accompaniment. Frank Yengling offered harmonica and guitar selections.

Home For Aged Women Is Aided by Community Chest Funds

The Home For Aged Women is one of several worthy institutions participating in Salem's Community chest.

Its doors were opened in October, 1888, for "the care of aged and infirm women of moderate circumstances" and from that date to the present time 69 individuals have become members of the family circle.

Largely through the labors and influence of Mrs. Hannah Koll the institution had its inception. Of the original board of managers, she is the only survivor. Although living at a distance from Salem, she is still deeply interested in the work of the home and supports it in a material way.

During the 45 years this institution has been a haven of rest for its large family, it has been generously supported by interested friends. It has a modest endowment fund but like all public and many private institutions, its principal and institution had its inception. Of the original board of managers, she is the only survivor. Although living at a distance from Salem, she is still deeply interested in the work of the home and supports it in a material way.

ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE.
NO CODE TO IT.
HOW ABOUT RUSSIA?

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT asks 54 countries to keep their armies at home, and preserve peace on which depend "happiness, prosperity, the very lives of the men, women and children who inhabit the whole world."

The President puts the airplane first among attacking weapons that "fixed fortifications" can no longer resist, and expects all nations "wholly to eliminate from possession and use weapons which make possible successful attack."

Most important is the President's suggestion that "all the nations enter into a solemn, definite pact of non-aggression."

THIS message, in plain English, no mysterious "code" was sent broadcast to the nations of the world, including soviet Russia.

And that, according to Senator Borah, is an official recognition of Russia. If so, it puts an end to a ridiculous situation, bad for business.

The suggested non-aggression pact, whatever it might be worth in cases of "insult to national honor," may prove to be the "world's best peace hope." The suggestion to "eliminate weapons that make possible successful attack" cannot be adopted unless the nations give up all airplanes. That, they cannot and will not do.

Any fleet of commercial airplanes, within 24 hours, can be adapted to dropping explosives and poison gas that would destroy any city.

PARIS calls President Roosevelt's message "a beautiful sermon," "very pious, very lofty." France "will accept President Roosevelt's suggestion in principle," while reserving certain rights involving national security.

Public opinion in America will also reserve certain rights, if only as a matter of economy. It cost too much to get ready in a hurry last time, and after the billions were spent we had to show for them only airships that wouldn't fly and air surface ships that never went to sea.

PEACE talk never checks the intelligent French in their preparation for what may come. As a "national defense measure" French factories were ordered yesterday to report to the "passive defense bureau" on the number of their employees and their capacity. This will tell the French government how many men it has ready to manufacture explosives, chemicals, airplanes and other useful things.

JAPAN proceeds along lines laid out for Asia, regardless of Europe's league of nations. Her plans include free colony in Northern China, and the capture of Peiping, the "forbidden city," seems near. Rich Chinese are leaving Peiping, hurrying with movable property into the safer foreign areas of Tientsin. American missionaries are moving away from the Peiping area.

THE stock exchange, which had been drifting, was pleased with President Roosevelt's peace message. Stocks went up from one to five points. Brokers and speculators remember what happened when the other big war came and the stock exchange closed.

"NUDIST colonies," where men and women go naked, are re-opening for the season in New Jersey and elsewhere. In one camp nudist cooks prepare food served by nudist waiters and waitresses.

Decency develops slowly, the other thing develops rapidly.

It took the human race, probably, a million years to learn to wear clothes, as they gradually lost their original covering of reddish hair. It takes them five minutes to change into "nude" idiots.

Rogers represented the Independent with James Lepper, Frank Moffett and John Horne representing the Deluge.

Reasbeck was spokesman for the Independent representation, while Horne and Lepper spoke for the latter. Each explained their companies are in serious need of funds with back rentals and other expenses accumulating against them. The organizations, they said, have gone into debt because they anticipated financial aid from the city.

Confer With Tracy

Councilmen concurred in the opinion that steps should be taken to give the companies the appropriations set aside for them by the city this year. Solicitor Cecil K. Scott being instructed to confer with State Auditor Tracy concerning the legality of such a procedure. Solons declared that, because the companies had incurred debts assuming that funds would be forthcoming from the city, the municipality is under obligation to pay them the 1933 appropriations.

MANITOWOC, Wis.—A new farm revolt this time against paying dog taxes, has been reported by Manitowoc. County authorities. Lists of dog owners delinquent in taxes have been turned over to the district attorney. After each name is the explanation: "Refuses to pay." Farmers contend that their dairy products are not bringing enough revenue to permit their paying dog licenses.

Boy Killer's Mother Prostrated

Shocked into unconsciousness by the verdict of the jury, finding her 16-year-old son, Harry, guilty of second degree murder, Mrs. Harry Murch is shown as she was carried from the Queens County, N. Y., Court by her husband. The boy was convicted of slaying 12-year-old Willie Bender last January. He faces from 20 years to life in Sing Sing.

COLUMBIANA

Rotarian Dr. F. W. Trader gave a very interesting talk Monday evening at the meeting of the Columbiana Rotary club at the Park hotel, discussing social diseases.

He described the various types and told of the increase in these diseases, especially since the World War. Dr. Trader advocates that parents give more instruction on the subject to children in the home. Prof. H. A. Tuttle, Youngstown, and Atty R. G. Oakes were visitors at the meeting. President Leo Holloway announced that the speaker at the next meeting would be Attorney Homer Swaney of Beaver Falls, Pa.

Further announcement was made of the coming convention of Rotary International in Boston June 28-29. Elmer T. Coyle is chairman of the "On To Boston" committee. The following committee has been appointed to make arrangements for the annual Ladies' night party to be held the last of the month: Frank E. Griffin, Edgar F. Miller, Dick Fitzpatrick, Lloyd R. Wilson and Elmer T. Coyle.

Kiwanis Hears Judge Lyon

The Columbiana Kiwanis club met Monday evening at the Mt. Olivet Reformed church, North Lima, the speaker being Judge J. H. C. Lyon of Youngstown, a native of New Waterford and once teacher of the Mt. Pleasant school near here. Communism and Technocracy were scored in his talk. They have no place in America, he said. North Lima citizens present included: Jesse Dilworth, Kenneth Plau, Clyde Sahll, M. D. Bush, J. O. Entekin, J. T. Shellenberger and Ura and Walter Trover. Judge Lyon was introduced by W. O. Wallace. Mark Klingensmith and Fred Maurer also gave short talks. Next Monday the meeting will be held in the local Lutheran church, with Mr. Klingensmith giving a talk. The club is sponsoring the play, "George In A Jam," presented by the New Waterford Firemen in the Columbiana school auditorium Wednesday night of this week, the proceeds to be

It is tulip time in Holland, the land of windmills. It is also tulip time in Holland, Mich., where, once a year, the residents of the quaint town cast off their American habits and return to the customs and attire of the land whence came their forebears to the New World. Here is a typical group, pictured in Dutch costume, admiring the blooms so reminiscent of old Holland.

and a stenographer by the hour just as needed. When the depression came on and the work grew heavier and heavier, the social worker employed her daughter and divided her salary with her. The councilman in each ward has been doing a great deal of the visiting of the families and have done a very commendable piece of work.

Some Figures

"Salem Chapter of Red Cross has received from the National American Red Cross $3,840 worth of ready made garments, 9,550 yards of material valued at $1,581, 4,520 sacks of flour valued at $4,520, seed in May, 1932, valued at $224, making a total of $10,932.

"There still remains a part of the ready made garments and a part of the material. A record is made of every family receiving any part of this relief from the national Red Cross and also of every family receiving city relief and a thorough investigation is made by councilmen. Outside of what has been received from national Red Cross Salem chapter has spent $7,425 from May, 1932, to May, 1933. Of this about $2,700 has been spent for relief, part being paid on back debts.

"There are many things that the Red Cross is called upon to do that can not be paid for with the money that city council is using for relief. R. F. C. money.

"The Red Cross nursing service has been a great asset to our community during this depression. Many that in normal times could care for their nursing bills have been unable to have nursing care without the Red Cross nurse. She has had a cut in her salary and has had to work longer hours.

The Red Cross Nurse

One of the very important and little-known phases of Red Cross work is the service rendered by the Red Cross nurse. She visits families on call, and gives conscientious service regardless of whether or not the family visited is able to pay a fee.

In Salem 453 families sought the help of the Red Cross nurse in 1932 where a total of 1,125 calls were made. To date in 1933, 170 families have asked for the aid which only the Red Cross nurse can bring. Already 445 calls have been made this year, not counting numerous interviews.

Red Cross visiting nursing service is for everyone. It is not alone a charity service; each patient, if able to pay, gives a minimum fee. The work is carried on by a registered graduate nurse trained in public health work. She visits the home to which she has been called and gives the same expert care as though she were a special nurse on the case. She gives instruction and advice to the expectant mother; she gives maternity care to mothers and new babies; she demonstrates the proper care of well babies. The

Tinkling Bells and the clink of silver

In a Chinese fairy story one reads about the Emperor's garden, where rare and colorful plants from all over the world were constantly flowering.

It was the duty of the honorable head gardener to watch for the most beautiful of the blooms and tie to the stem of each a little silver bell. As the flowers swayed in the breeze, the bells tinkled with sweet music. Thus the courtiers and the distinguished visitors, strolling along the paths, were sure to see the finest specimens.

This was the Emperor's way of saying "I have something extra fine that you should see; look this way and you'll be repaid."

In the advertising columns of this paper are similar messages addressed to YOU. Read them and you will hear the clink of silver. Our merchants are saying "We have some extra values. We have some especially seasonable articles that you should see. Come to our stores and you will be repaid."

You have nothing to lose when you accept this invitation. In fact, when you fail to do so, you're missing some of the very news for which you bought this paper!

If any "modern" baseball fans—those of the Ruthian era who prefer base hits to inside baseball—are worried about the domination of the flingers this spring, they have only to turn to Washington for hope.

Senators Beat Tribe, 11-10
The Senators and the Cleveland Indians put on a slugfest of near record proportions yesterday as they struggled through 12 innings before Washington won, 11-10.

The result put the teams into a tie a few points behind the New York Yankees, whose idleness regained for them the American league lead.

In the long session the teams made a total of 42 hits, good for 51 bases, and nine pitchers went to the showers before Al Crowder finally got the decision over "Hard Luck" Mel Harder.

Washington piled 27 of the blows on top of last Sunday's doubleheader at Chicago, which produced 28 hits and 19 runs against the White Sox. Cecil Travis, recalled from Chattanooga to plug the gap at third left by Ossie Bluege's injury, celebrated his debut by making five singles, getting on base a sixth time through an error, and scoring three runs.

Luke Sewell Stars
Luke Sewell likewise garnered five hits but Joe Kuhel topped them all by hitting a homer, a triple and three singles, driving in the winning run after two singles and an intentional pass loaded the sacks.

One redeeming feature of the clash for the Indians comes in the batting performance of their star left fielder, Joe Vosmik, who had previously obtained but one hit in 14 games. Against the Senators he slugged out four safeties in five trips to the plate.

The Browns went 11 innings to beat the Boston Red Sox, 3 to 2.

The eastern openers between Detroit and New York and Chicago and Philadelphia were rained out.

Pirates Beat Phils

Eastern clubs of the National league began their invasion of the western sector by winning three out of four decisions.

The Pirates were the only home team to win, beating the Phillies, 4 to 4.

The Giants came through to beat the Cubs 4 to 1, despite four errors.

Joe Mauer starred as the Boston Red Sox beat the Cincinnati Reds 7 to 3. He accounted for two runs with a single and a triple.

The Brooklyn Dodgers trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 6 to 5.

Signing for Title Bout

Well, sir, the newest "battle of the century" seems to be all arranged now that Champion Jack Sharkey, heavyweight king, and Primo Carnera have settled all the formalities. Here are Sailor Jack (left) and Da Preem as they appended their signatures on the well-known dotted line for their title bout in New York next month. In rear are Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, and Louis Seresi (right), who handles the business end for Mount Carnera.

History Proves Easy Living Harmful to Fight Champions

BY JACK MCALIFFE
Unbeaten Lightweight Champion Written for The United Press
Does soft living take away a man's natural ability, whether he is a fighter in the ring, a general or an admiral? History proves it does. Attila conquered Rome when he lived in a mud-house. When he wore fine linen and jewelry, it was the beginning of the ruin of his Empire.

Napoleon conquered the world and lived in a tent until Josephine sent him half a dozen silk night-shirts, and it was the beginning of his downfall.

Our own U. S. Grant never knew what a room with bath was until he went to the White House. Abe Lincoln, when he went to the old Willard Hotel in Washington to take the oath of office as President, found that a suite of rooms had been placed at his disposal, and he sent word to the proprietor that he did not want to hire the whole hotel.

Luxury Softened Jackson
Andrew Jackson, one of the greatest fighters the United States ever had, chewed tobacco, spat on the floor and conquered the British in New Orleans. Then he fell into luxury and softened up.

The great Admiral Nelson never knew what a silk handkerchief was until the battle of Trafalgar.

As to prize fighters—Tom Cribb, first Champion of England, was backed by a Lord but didn't live in his palace. He had a room over a barn and took baths in the barnyard. No hot-house plant was he!

Dan Donnelly never carried a handkerchief but on his visit to London a member of the nobility signed for a title bout.

History proves it does.
